1. INTRODUCTION

Corruption thrives in environments where opportunities and incentives for illegal behavior are provided with minimal consequences, but also where weak and ineffective systems of control mechanisms are found. However, both the prevention and suppression of corruption are possible in environments that minimize the above opportunities, encourage and promote integrity and accountability, enable transparency, enjoy regulatory guidance and integrate the respective Organization's efforts to prevent, deter and fighting corruption.

In this context, ELLAKTOR Group, demonstrating its explicit commitment to zero tolerance for corruption phenomena and any kind of unfair practices and illegal activities, has adopted and implemented an Anti-Corruption Policy.

The Anti-Corruption Policy works in addition to and in conjunction with the Code of Ethics, the Business Partner's Code of Conduct, the Third-Party Due Diligence Policy, the Whistleblowing Policy, the Conflict of Interest Policy, as well as the Donations-Sponsorship Policy, while being an integral part of the Integrity Compliance Program.

ANNEX

A. FORMS OF BRIBERY

I. Facilitation payments (bribes) :

They are made with the purpose of inducing a person to perform a duty which he is obliged to perform, and especially in cases where the monetary amount of this payment exceeds in value what is actually requested. This is a well-known practice, widely used in certain countries, to accelerate or secure the provision of ordinary public services or documents. An example of such a case could be a company who pays the person in charge of licensing (e.g. environmental, installation, operating) to avoid delays.

Therefore, no facilitation payment of any kind should be made, even if it is permitted by local law or even if it may lead to commercial delays, such as, for example, a payment of a small amount to speed up the processing of the Company's application to Public Authority.

Furthermore, if a facilitation payment is requested, or there are any suspicions, concerns or questions regarding a certain payment, any person within the scope of this Policy must report this fact to their immediate Supervisor. Depending on each case, and if deemed necessary, the Compliance Division should be informed as soon as possible, so that with its assistance, the appropriate prevention and response measures can be taken.

II. Kickbacks:

It is a form of bribery paid to a person with the ability to influence an Organization in exchange for securing some kind of benefit to the bribe giver. More commonly, kickbacks are paid by companies looking to secure profitable, or with favorable terms agreements/contracts. In return for his "help", part of the benefit of the agreement/contract is paid (or "returned") to the decision maker within the Organization. The Organization is not aware of the payment to its official.

III. Intermediaries - Hidden commissions:

Businesses often use agents to enter into a certain contract on their behalf, for example undertaking the execution of a public project in a foreign country. Hidden commissions are a form of bribery where the agent requests or accepts a payment to achieve or influence the signing and development of said contracts for the benefit of the briber, without the knowledge or consent of the agented business/company. This payment may be to secure the signing of the contract, to secure favorable terms, or even to prevent a competitor from entering into a relevant agreement.

IV. Influence peddling:

Also known as "trading" or "trafficking in influence", influence peddling occurs where an official seeks to obtain payment in return for using their influence to secure an undue advantage or favor for the payer. The term is also used where it is the payer who solicits officials to use their influence to secure an undue advantage or favor in return for payment.

V. Bribery in relation to Politically Exposed Persons (PEPs):

The contacts and relationships of any person subject to the scope of this Policy with Politically Exposed Persons, must not endanger the name, reputation and integrity of the Company. Therefore, it is absolutely necessary to draw everyone's attention to completely exclude any involvement in situations that can be considered as bribery or improper transactions with the persons in question.

VI. Dependence on Political Actions:

It is expressly stated that, on behalf of the Group, no aid is provided to political entities, regardless of value or form. It should be noted that aid to political entities may include, among other things, goods, services, gifts, loans, financing of campaigns or events, use of corporate facilities or equipment by politicians, political parties, or political organizations. Furthermore, and regarding the cases of any active participation on behalf of any of the employees of the Company and/or its affiliated companies, in political procedures and in matters of public interest, it is expressly stated that this participation is completely independent and not related with the Company and/or its affiliated companies.

VII. Bribery in the form of providing Donations - Sponsorships:

The offering of donations - sponsorships within the context of the corporate social responsibility actions of the Group, takes place in accordance with the special procedure adopted by the Group, in order to ensure that no commercial advantage or other privileged treatment is expected from the sponsorships. In any case, it should be ensured that the relevant sponsorships are of a charitable or social nature and that they are granted only to Organizations that are recognized and reputable.

B. RED FLAGS OF CORRUPTION

Listed below are indicative, but not limiting, cases that are warning signs ("red flags") and may indicate the possible existence of a corruption problem. Although these red flags do not necessarily exclude the possibility of entering into or maintaining business relations with a Third Party, any finding of them nevertheless requires special attention and investigation. If any person, subject to the scope of the Anti-Corruption Policy, and in particular any employee of the Group, detects any of these red flags, must report this fact through the specially provided communication channels for the submission of reports, in order for the relevant report management procedures to be applied.
